

ABSTRACT

A sleeve-like cover for a cylinder in a press for holding a plate-like printing form, having a slit which runs substantially parallel to the axis of rotation of the cover, it being possible for edges of a printing form to be fixed in the slit by means of at least one retaining force element. Sleeve-like covers with different external diameters for a cylinder in a press are used in order to vary the printing length of the press.